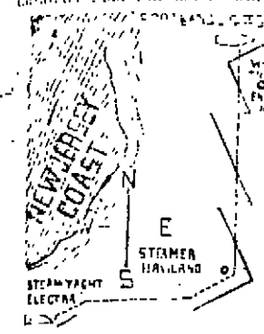
VOLUNTEER AND THISTLE

THE DISCUSSION WHICH THEY EXCITE IN YACHTING CIRCLES

Compar- on Between the Two Yachts — What a Scotch Yachtsman Thinks About the Matter — How Thistle Not Built After American Models.



QUEEN OF VOLUNTEER AND THISTLE.

...she will carry on the race of the 31st of ... with the exception of ... which is to be ... Lipton and larger than ... Hyslop is ... that ... that day when she took part in ... that she was ... by the boats that hung ... Tuesday.

A gentleman, who is yachting editor of a ... Scotch journal, writes to The New York World a lengthy letter in which he says that in his twenty years' yachting experience he has never seen any vessel done so much broken water as the Volunteer did on the day of the trial race. He even goes so far as to say that the Anchor line steamship ... which he crossed the Atlantic did not make such a row even in a gale of wind. This seems to be putting the case rather strongly in view of the fact that the clean wake of the Volunteer has been remarked upon ever since she has been launched. He declares furthermore that the Thistle is no Anderson invention, but is the ... of the latest ... of the British yacht racing ... Mr. Watson, the designer, has, he says, designed a new type of Scotch yacht and ... fortunate in ... work he has done so far. The interesting ... makes, however, of the Thistle ... does not seem ... Gibb's ... in this article show the course of the Volunteer in the ... race with the Genesta.
